

Terms & Conditions

The following terms and conditions apply to institutional subscriptions to the electronic versions of White Horse Press journals.

PRICING

For full details see our journals price list.

Access to the electronic version is included with institutional subscriptions to the print version. This access is ‘perpetual’ for volumes actually subscribed to; i.e. we undertake that it will endure for at least as long as the journals continue to be published by The White Horse Press. Subscriptions now include temporary access to the full backset, during the subscription year only, at no extra cost.

Perpetual access to back volumes more than two years old is available at a substantially reduced rate.

Institutions buying back volumes of the print version at current prices (available direct from the publishers) will be entitled to free online access, to be arranged with the publishers at the time of purchase.

Institutions requiring the online version and not the print version can subscribe to the electronic-only version for approximately 90 percent of the institutional print subscription.

All subscription sales are now handled by Liverpool University Press on behalf of The White Horse Press.

CONDITIONS OF USE

* White Horse Press is a participant in SERU (<https://www.niso.org/standards-committees/seru>). Users are therefore not required to sign a contract unless this is a requirement of their institution.

* Standard rate online access is for a single institution. This covers multiple campuses within a single local area. Multi-site access is available, at the publisher’s discretion, for single institutions with dispersed sites. (Library consortia are specifically excluded.)

- * The following conditions around access and usage apply to all articles that are NOT licensed as open access under a CC BY license or similar. Terms of access and usage for articles that ARE licensed as open access under a CC BY license or similar are governed by the specifics of the applicable license.
- * All members (employees, faculty, staff and students) of the subscribing institution are entitled to access. This includes visitors or members of the public accessing via terminals located on the site and under the control of the subscribing institution, and home computers belonging to staff and students where access can be authenticated by the institution.
- * Use of the electronic versions of the journals is limited to the purposes of private research or study and not for resale or commercial gain.
- * Single copies of articles may be downloaded, stored on a PC or printed out.
- * Where multiple copies of non-Open Access articles are required for course packs etc., the user should seek permission via RightsLink or the Copyright Licensing Agency and will be required to pay the fees currently in force.
- * Articles may be stored in digital format in electronic collections held by the institution for teaching or research purposes.
- * Articles may be forwarded to other members of the institution but no dissemination to individuals who are not members of the institution should take place. The electronic version may not be used for inter-library loan. Institutions may, however, supply a single paper copy of an individual article to authorised users of another library by post or fax, for the purposes of research or private study and not for commercial use. Such document supply may also be made by secure transmission using Ariel software, or similar, provided the electronic file is deleted immediately after printing.
- * All reasonable efforts should be made to ensure that members of the subscribing institution are aware of and abide by these conditions of use.
